

VOCATION EXPERT DECRIES TRADITION

Says Schools Turn Out All From Same Grist Without Useful
Preparation.

One of the most enlightening expositions of vocational education, its need, and its opportunities, yet presented in Washington, is given by Prof. Meyer Bloomfield.

Prof. Bloomfield is a pioneer in this field, and his work with the vocational guidance bureau of Boston, has attracted nationwide attention. He is the author of several books on the subject, and a monograph by him, "The Right Start in Life," is about to be issued by the United States Bureau of Education.

The teachers' section of the National Civic Federation brought Prof. Bloomfield to Washington for a lecture last night at the Public Library. His views are particularly timely, because of the pending Chamber of Commerce investigation of vocational training.

By J. R. HILDEBRAND.
"Before education can be efficient we must learn to interpret school subjects in terms of career values." That sums up Prof. Meyer Bloomfield's creed of vocational education. And by that term, he does not mean merely a dabbling in shop work, or a brief cooking course. Vocational work includes the activities of the boy who would study law or medicine. But it would not give the boys headed toward those professions a practical monopoly on education.

"All we need is to get a right sense of proportion. We must break the tradition which drives too many boys toward these over-estimated professions, and show them the golden opportunities in other fields. We would not discourage the boy who is bent on any of the old line professions. But we would encourage the boy whose bent is not in that direction. We would teach girls that it takes more brains to be a good cook than a poor stenographer."

Dr. Bloomfield cleared up many hazy notions concerning vocational education, and denied the aim of such training was to decide what a boy should do.

Unfolded Opportunities.
"No one would rob a boy of his birthright to choose his life work. All vocational training aims to do is to unfold to him the wider opportunities, and give him an unfettered choice."

That commercial education, as now conducted in many cities, fits pupils only for clerical work, and leaves untouched the best chances in business fields, was one of his striking assertions.

"Our business schools now are the one line in which we think we are meeting the vocational education need," he said. "But commercial education is being overdone. And instead of preparing young men to fill remunerative and worthwhile positions, like those of salesmen, buyers, merchandising, and advertising work, it merely is equipping them for routine clerical work, in which there is the slightest sort of chance for progress."

The case of girls is just as bad, according to this educator.

Too Many Stenographers.
"Our schools are turning out stenographers by the hundreds," he said. "These must work for a mere pittance, even if they are efficient. Many of them should not have been stenographers at all, but they should have been guided toward those more remunerative professions, such as matrons, stewardesses, and diet experts, in which the supply nowhere meets the demand and where there are rich rewards for women."

Nursing, too, has only just been lifted from the group of vocations regarded as menial and put upon a professional basis. There are scores of such positions for which girls are peculiarly fitted, and in which they would command good salaries, whereas we now are sending them into the routine business hopper."

Asking pupils about to graduate from high school to write compositions on what they are going to be, is a favorite experiment with Prof. Bloomfield.

Show His Education.
"Of course we find out little about what the boy really is going to do," he continued, "but we learn a great deal from those papers about the school, the teachers, and the guidance he has received."

"To make this experiment once in a school where the vocational idea has not been exploited, then to try it after a series of lectures on vocational opportunities, will awaken one to how easy, instead of how hard, it is to turn the minds of pupils into the fields where there are better opportunities."

"Many poor boys now go to medical schools where the complete laboratory equipment is a set of dirty tubes and a dead cat for vivisection. Many others attend law schools where a degree is sold for the price of tuition. It would be better for these boys and for the community if they had been directed to the chances awaiting them in new fields."

"Amusing results follow most efforts to find which children attend a certain high school. Many go to a particular school because their fathers attend. Others find their way to academic schools because they believe bright boys go there while the dull ones go to the business or technical schools."

Takoma Inventor Brings Commuters Help

Has the Brightwood line of the Washington Railway and Electric Company been misjudged?

It is possible that the abuse and vituperation that has been heaped upon its head, or, rather, its cars, by the commuters along the line has been unwarranted?

Can it be that the Brightwood line is just the best and most accommodating interurban line we've ever had around these parts, with the accommodation of the traveling and commuting public as its only object? Can it be?

It hardly seems possible. Still out in Brightwood there lives a man who has been traveling back and forth on the Brightwood line ever since it was first put in operation. He is one of the leading citizens of this thriving and what heretofore was believed rather inaccessible suburb, who says the Brightwood line is as innocent as a new-born babe.

He frankly indicts the residents of Brightwood as responsible for the strained relations which have existed between the railway company and the commuters.

Improved Service.
This man is an inventor, and has given much time to the study of suburban railway travel. He is convinced after long years of research that the companies have been embarrassed and harassed unreasonably by impractical inventions.

He believes that the service can be improved much more materially by inventions tending to aid the commuter along the way, and that the railway company, with this object in view, has recently completed the working model of an invention guaranteed to produce comfort, speed, and convenience in traveling on the Brightwood line.

The invention is not yet on the market, and has not been exhibited for public inspection but a Brightwood resident, who has been taken into the inventor's confidence and shown the model describes it as follows:

Ten Separate Features.
"The apparatus itself includes ten separate features, each designed to meet a particular aspect of the service between Takoma Park and Washington and return."

"Take for instance the breeches buoy landing device. This attachment is for use in conveying passengers from the car, which has just arrived from the city and stopped to discharge its passengers a half a block down the muddy hillside. In order to avoid perishing in the mud or snow, or sleet which intervenes between the car and the sidewalk, the passengers are conveyed by a cable which will be erected for this purpose."

"Another feature of the apparatus is the portable waiting shed, which furnishes shelter to the passenger for the city while he waits a quarter of an hour for the car to come in."

"The little combination washroom and vacuum cleaner is used by the passenger to clean off the fragments of the meal which the motormen and the conductors eat in the cars and leave scattered over the seats. By the use of this device the seats are kept clean."

PREDICTS DEFEAT OF DISTRICT'S FOES

B. H. Warner Praises Committee of 100 in an Address at Takoma Park.

Confident of the ultimate defeat of opponents of the half-and-half plan, Brainerd H. Warner last night explained the taxation situation in an address before the Takoma Park Historical Society.

Mr. Warner said the efforts of the committee of 100 were beginning to be felt, and that by this time millions of people all over the country are taking a lively interest in the efforts to maintain the present financial status of the District of Columbia.

He particularly commended The Washington Times for its efforts "in behalf of the citizens of Washington, and its effective stimulation of newspaper interest in the fight."

Referring to efforts in Congress to change the present financial status of the District, Mr. Warner said:

"Most of our representatives in Congress are highly intelligent men who want to do the right thing, of course, there are certain men in every legislative assembly, whose desire to attract notoriety warps their judgment, and we have had a typical exhibition of this trait recently, but I am glad to say that the great majority of the quiet, thinking men in both houses of Congress are not to be deterred from their plain, public duty, by the hue and cry of those who seek publicity."

These quiet, steady members will all answer at the roll call, and when the votes are counted, I am sure that the District of Columbia will have been saved."

Mr. Warner stated that he had received assurances from the members of the committee of 100, that they would stand by the half-and-half plan, and that the friends of the District were increasing in the House also.

L. P. Shoemaker Speaks.
Louis P. Shoemaker, who preceded Mr. Warner, asserted that the attack now being made on the District of Columbia was almost as serious as the attack by Early's army in the civil war. He predicted that the committee of one hundred, and attacked the efforts in Congress to repudiate the half-and-half plan, winking up the state of the town, and touching upon the growth of Takoma Park from a few scattering houses to its present position as the largest town in Montgomery county.

No definite date has yet been set when the new apparatus will be placed on sale in Takoma Park, but the first installment of the machines, which are expected to be sold out on the spot, are looked for within a few days.

W.C.T.U. and Billy Sunday Aid Hobson's Campaign.
Billy Sunday is one of the contributors to Congressman Hobson's Senatorial campaign in Indiana, and gave $100 to the cause, according to the statement of campaign expenses submitted to the Senate by Captain Hobson.

Captain Hobson's total expenses were $2,367.84, mainly for travel and newspaper advertising. Contributions amounting to $255, of which $137 came from the W. C. T. U.

Senator Crawford spent $2,055 in the South Dakota contest, and Governor Burke $3,328. Senator Clarke of Arkansas reported $300, and his opponent, William P. Kirby, $1,531. Senator Shively of Indiana reported no expenditure.

FEMINISM IN ART HAS ITS WINNINGS

Unusual Array of Musical Women is Feature of April Disc Records Just Issued.

There is more than the mere flavor of feminism to at least one important feature of this month's musical offerings.

Practically every artist of importance featured in the April list of new Columbia double-disc records is a woman.

First comes Mme. Jeanne Gertrude-Reache, the French contralto, whose work has aroused the enthusiasm of operatic audiences in Europe and in this country. Mme. Gertrude-Reache was first heard in America at the Manhattan Opera House in 1907, her engagement by Oscar Hammerstein following an already brilliant career in Covent Garden, the Paris Opera Comique, and the Theater de la Monnaie, Brussels. She has recently been heard in many States of the Union in concert work. Her first exclusively Columbia records comprise the two great arias from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah."

The next famous woman on the list is Olive Fremstad, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House of New York. Her offerings this month are two songs, "Ach, Wie Moriglich" (How Can I Leave Thee) and Brahms' "Cradle Song."

Maigie Teyte, the smallest prima donna, is one of the most recent recruits to the ranks of record makers. As such she is already a success. In her most recent recordings are "L'Heure Exquise" and "Mifanwy," one on either side of a double-disc record.

One of the most remarkable records ever issued appears in this list. It is by a young woman with a genuine tenor voice of such quality, power and virility as would dignify any operatic star. Miss Ruby Helder is the artist in question and, in writing of her, Charles Stanley, dean of all English singers, said: "Miss Ruby Helder possesses a natural, pure tenor voice of great beauty and power." Her first double-disc contains two popular tenor songs, "Tost's 'My Dream' and 'My Maxouren' from 'Lily of Killarney.'"

Two of the best known of our native song artists—Grace Kerna and Mildred Potter—are heard in two separate discs, "Hear Me, Norma," from Bellini's "Norma," and "The Quest of Love and Beauty," from Verdi's "Sicilian Vespers."

Yet two more women—this time instrumentalists, Kitty Berger, probably the most renowned player on the harp-ither, contributes two selections, and Christeta Goni, the Spanish girl violinist, has made a record of Sarasate's "Andalusian Romance," and the "Habenera" from "La Galla Cleopatra," by the same composer. This girl appeared in New York last year and made a sensation.

On the rest of the list there is the usual array of song hits from the latest Broadway musical shows and also a new list of modern dance records that have been made under the personal supervision of G. Hepburn Wilson, M. B.

Herbert A. Gill, of 612 Fourteenth street northwest, has reported to the police that thieves entered a vacant house owned by him, at 20 Jackson place, northwest, and had stolen two chandeliers, fifteen gas fixtures, several spigots, and lead pipe valued at $60.

The site for the proposed $300,000 Southern Methodist Church, to be built in this city, has been almost decided upon, and it is expected that announcement of the location will be made by the site committee in the next few days.

SEVERAL CHANGES IN PRINTING OFFICE

Separations, Transfers, and Appointments Affect Nearly Every Division.

A number of important changes in the personnel of the Government Printing Office forces were announced today. The changes include separations, transfers, as well as a number of appointments, and affect nearly every division of the big print shop.

Among them were: Appointments—Miss Annie Walters, machine operator (reinstated); Miss Helen Y. Boone, skilled laborer, transferred from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; Howard D. Low, compositor (reinstated).

Separations—Jesse Tilghman, skilled laborer, resigned; Miss Daisy E. Davis, machine operator, resigned; Elsie S. Hoffman, skilled laborer, resigned; Charles E. Castle, temporary compositor, dropped; John C. Keelan, temporary compositor, dropped.

The next famous woman on the list is Olive Fremstad, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House of New York. Her offerings this month are two songs, "Ach, Wie Moriglich" (How Can I Leave Thee) and Brahms' "Cradle Song."

Duffy's Again a Life Saver
Here's a woman who grew weaker and weaker until chance led her to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it came to the rescue, as it usually does. But read what she, herself, says:

"I wish to announce what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done for me. Some time ago I had a very bad attack of dysentery that lasted two months. I went to my doctor and gave him powers and medicine, but it did me no good as I grew weaker and weaker. I was getting consumption of the bowels. I had tried the best of brands with no result, but good luck wanted that my eyes fell on a Duffy Pure Malt Whiskey ad in the evening paper. I looked over it carefully and saw it was good for weak bowels—I at once bought a bottle, and before it was half used I felt it was doing good. To make sure, I finished the bottle and I was myself again. I cannot praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey enough for what it did for me. It is also good for indigestion and nervous neuralgia. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was my life savior.—Mrs. A. Cooper, 2349 Fulton ave., Brooklyn, N. Y."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey
is one of the greatest strength builders and tonic stimulants known to science. Its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so it can be retained by the most delicate stomach. Overworked men, delicate women and sickly children will find in it the health and strength-giving properties so necessary to them. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous. Recognized as a family medicine everywhere. The gentle and invigorating properties of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey influence for good every important organ of the body. "Get Duffy's and keep well." Sold in sealed bottles only by most druggists, grocers, and dealers, $1.00 a large bottle. Avoid substitutes and "just as good as" and insist on the genuine Duffy's. Medical booklet and doctor's advice sent free.
